

ASTD Midlands invites you to

Innovista

by John Parks, Associate VP for Economic Development

Innovista represents the physical manifestation of the University of South Carolina's longtime research philosophy of nurturing innovation, creativity, discovery, and opportunity. With Innovista, the University of South Carolina has reinvented the notion of how and where researchers will live and work—in the process creating a destination for innovation, creativity, entertainment, culture, and more.

Innovista integrates public and private sector research in high-tech, high-density facilities. Innovista—a $250-million investment—also promises to be an economic catalyst that will raise the state's per-capita income and quality of life by attracting knowledge-based businesses and high-paying jobs.
